BIGS News - Message from President Betty

News from the Board:

Northwest Genealogy Conference: This is an outstanding local opportunity to learn! The conference, sponsored by the Stillaguamish Valley Genealogical Society, is being held in Arlington, Washington August 17 -20, 2016. Many BIGS members have attended past conferences so we're cancelling our August 19 monthly meeting since it conflicts with the conference. Watch their website for more information.

Membership Survey: THANK YOU to the 30% who have responded. If you haven't already responded, please do. This is a great opportunity to get feedback from our members that will be helpful in guiding the organization.

More about Getting Organized from a Professional Organizer:

As those of you at the January 19th meeting recall, one of the topics we talked about was organizing our genealogy information and papers. In the January 2016 Federation of Genealogical Societies (FGS) forum, there was article by a professional organizer about organizing which I found interesting, so I'll pass some ideas along.

Here are a few of the suggestions I especially liked from Janine Adam's 11 Tips for Getting Organized in 2016 from FGS Forum, Vol 27 #4 Winter 2015.

- #2: Label the heck of out everything (files, boxes, piles). "Misc." and "stuff" aren't recommended! Try to find a meaningful 2-3 word category.
- #8: Carve out time - make a date - to organize. Try to stay on top of new documents while working on your backlog.
- #9: Set a timer (e.g., 15 minutes) to stay focused on task.

The author is a professional organizer and amateur genealogist and here is a link to her website www.peaceofmindorganizing.com.

Genealogy News

- Many users were devastated last month when Ancestry announced the demise of Family Tree Maker, their popular genealogy software. They announced that they would be discontinuing updates immediately and support at the end of 2016. However, in response to backlash from customers, they've just announced agreements with two software vendors. Software maker Mackiev is buying Family Tree Maker and will continue to support and update the software. It will also maintain the capability to sync with online tree at Ancestry. Ancestry also announced a deal with RootsMagic, the popular genealogy software maker. You should be able to connect RootsMagic on your home computer to your family tree on Ancestry by the end of 2016.
- Read more about it at the Genealogy Insider
- RootsTech, the world's largest genealogy event, was held earlier this month in Salt Lake City. If you didn't attend, you can still watch the presentations at home on your computer for free. There are some great speakers and topics! Click here to see what they have and start watching!
- I received an announcement from genealogy site Mocavo a few weeks ago announcing that they will be merging with FindMyPast. The Mocavo content will be moving to the FindMyPast site over the next few months. I guess I shouldn't be surprised by another merger in the genealogy world. At least I'll have one less password to keep track of!

- Anyone researching their Irish ancestry will be happy to hear that subscription site FindMyPast is releasing a collection of 10 million Irish Roman Catholic parish registers next month. Read more about it on Irish Genealogy News.
- FindMyPast last year released the 1939 register, an important new resource for anyone researching recent ancestors in the England or Wales. However, they imposed an additional fee to download documents and view full transcriptions, even for existing subscribers. I'm happy to say that they're lifting that fee on February 16 so subscribers will have unlimited access to these records.
The United Kingdom has a 100 year rule restricting access to census records. So the 1911 census is latest UK census available for research. The 1921 census should be available after 2021. Additionally, the 1931 census was destroyed and there was no census taken in 1941 due to the Second World War. So the 1939 register, produced to create ration cards and track the entire civilian population of England and Wales, is significant since it bridges a 30 year gap.
- The UK National Archives has an excellent video on using the 1939 register. It's well worth watching before you use these records.
- Season 3 of Finding Your Roots began last month. You can watch it on KCTS/Channel 9 at 8:00 PM on Tuesdays or online on the PBS website if you missed any episodes.
- Here are links to the latest updates from some of the major genealogy websites, with highlights in areas BIGS members are researching:
- - Ancestry recently added and updated these collections:
 - - U.S., Departing Passenger and Crew Lists, 1914-1962
 - Missouri, Methodist Church Records, 1856-1970

Subscription required. Access the library edition for free at any Family History Center.

- GenealogyBank - You can access the library edition, America's GenealogyBank, for free from home with your Seattle Public Library card. Kitsap County residents are eligible for free Seattle Public Library cards. Click here to sign up for a card.

◦

- The New England Historic Genealogical Society \(NEHGS\) - Although a subscription is required to access many databases, there are quite a few that you can access free of charge.

Tip of the Month

Looking for your ancestor between censuses or can't find them in a census? Try city directories. Think of them as phone books before phones. They list the head of household and their occupation and may list other family members.

Check anywhere there are books - libraries or online at Archive.org, Ancestry, FamilySearch, Google Books, Hathi Trust and Heritagequest to name a few places you can find them.
